ONLY HOPE FOR PEKING IS TO DIG UP PAY FOR NAVY

Marine Minister Assured Salt Seizure Has But One Aim

IS NOT POLITICAL

Government Will Make Desperate Effort To Get Money

Developments yesterday in connection with the seizure of the salt revenues of the Lianghu district by the Northern Government's navy indicate that only by paying the naval men their overdue wages, now six months in arrears, will the government be able to meet the situation that has arisen. Peking seemingly is powerless to prevent the taking over the salt revenues by the naval men.

In a telegram addressed to Peking Tuchun Chi Shih-yuan of Kiangsu openly expresses sympathy with the naval men and while urging the Government to take measures to put an end to the seizure of the salt revenues the tuchun points out that the action of the navy has seriously interfered with the business of salt merchants and carriers and has put an end to collection of the salt tax.

MINISTER ASKS QUESTIONS

On Thursday Admiral Li Ting-sing, Minister of Marine, addressed a communication to the commander of the navy, Vice Admiral Chiang Tsen, asking him whether the seizure of the salt revenues was an act of opposition to the Peking Cabinet, amounting to a declaration of independence, or whether it was due solely to the fact that wages and salaries in the navy have not been paid for six months. In this message Vice Admiral Chiang Tsen is assured that the Ministry of Marine is making every effort to pay off the men of the navy before the New Year and the promise is made that monthly payments will be made thereafter.

Vice Admiral Chiang in replying declared that the officers and men of the navy are entirely loyal, but after repeatedly asking for their pay without receiving any answer they had been forced into such extremities of need that the action taken was the only course open to them.

STATES POSITION

In his communication to Peking Vice Admiral Chiang pointed out that there are between 400 and 500 men on each first class ship, from 300 to 400 men on each second class ship and from 100 to 200 on each third class ship. He asserted that his men always have been loyal and for the past half year have gone hungry to uphold the good name of the navy. The need of the men became so desperate, however, that there were grave fears that a mutiny would take place and it was after a conference with the men, Vice Admiral Chiang said, that the decision to seize the salt revenues was reached.

The commander said also that if Peking will promptly pay up the arrears due the navy and allocate a fund guaranteeing future monthly payments the warships immediately will be sent back to places where they formerly were stationed and continue to support the Government. Vice Admiral Chiang makes it plain in his communication that the men of the Navy are indifferent to any question of reorganisation of the Cabinet.

Yangtsze Fleet Now Threatening

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 10.—Reports have reached Peking to the effect that the personel of a portion of the Chinese Yangtsze fleet have followed the example set by other government employees during the past few months and gone on strike for arrears of pay. It is stated that four or five vessels have gone to Chinkiang and are holding up all salt junks there. It is understood that their demand to the Central Government for a remittance of pay is accompanied by a threat to collect the salt taxes at Chinkiang for their own benefit if other funds are not forthcoming.

'Wine And Beer' Pastor

The Rev. Baker P. Lee, "fighting" pastor of Los Angeles, who has decided to devote considerable time and thought to the prohibition question and settle this difficult matter once and for all. The Reverend is now making a tour of the country, establishing headquarters for the newly-organised "Sanity League" to legalise beer and wine. Following his visit in San Francisco Dr. Lee will proceed to extend the activities of the League to Chicago, New York and other Eastern cities. The Anti-Saloon League had better watch out. He's on their trail.

PROFESSORS AND UNDERGRADS AT CORNELL HOAXED

Psychoanalysis Lecturer Who Charmed Them Was Disguised Senior

Foreign Press Service

New York, Dec. 15.—The students of Cornell University are slowly recovering from the shock of a great hoax recently perpetrated on its so-called "intelligentsia." A distinguishing mark of the younger "intelligentsia" in the United States as well as in Europe, it must be remembered, is an interest, inclined to be obsessive, in the over-popularised subject of psycho-analysis. It appears that among the students of Cornell there were a number who took this interesting path to self-knowledge very seriously.

Consequently when it was announced that Dr. Herman Vosberg, a pupil of the famous Freud, would lecture at the university on the teachings of his master, it was a foregone conclusion that every seat in the lecture hall would be filled. Dr. Vosberg arrived at the appointed hour, was introduced by a member of the psychology department, then in broken but understandable English, launched into his subject. His audience was composed almost entirely of university students and professors, and faculty and students alike put questions and eagerly drank in the answers.

The solution of dreams and the sub-conscious workings of the mind were all resolved to a calculus basis by the versatile Dr. Vosberg.

It is now disclosed that the much talked of Dr. Vosberg is none other than a Senior in the College of Architecture, and it is said that the committee in charge of the event had intended to make an explanatory announcement following the lecture, but in view of the turn things had taken, it was feared that a too sudden exposure would result in casualties among those who had drunk deeply of the philosopher's words and found them as delectable as nectar. There is a dispute about whether the faculty of the psychology department was really "in" on the affair or not.

Tariff Commission To Be Formed Here

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking Jan. 13.—At an interview with foreign journalists today the Waichiaopu announced that the Chinese Government, by the recognition of the Washington Conference, has decided to organise a commission in Shanghai with Mr. Chi Ting-kan as the chairman with the object of putting into effect the revised tariff.

The Waichiaopu also declared that the rumor that Mr. Chen Lu, Chinese Minister to France, and Mr. Hu Wei-teh, Chinese Minister to Japan, are to be changed, is without foundation.

JAPANESE YIELD ON SHANTUNG? CHINA MAY GET ROAD WITHOUT LOAN

Railway To Be Paid For With Treasury Notes Redeemable After Three Years, Says Reliable Washington Report

END OF DISPUTE IS PREDICTED

Adverse Rumors Put Out By Canton To Embarass Peking Regime, Conference Told; Tokio Cabinet Conciliatory

(Trans-Pacific Public Ledger— Exclusive To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 13.—The entire Shantung controversy is as good as settled, the Public Ledger is informed from highest quarters, as a result of decisions reached by the Tokio cabinet in extraordinary session this afternoon. At this meeting a decision was reached to make new concessions to China with regard to the Shantung railway which "cannot fail of Chinese acceptance," to use the words of the Japanese spokesman.

Assurances have been given that the concessions contemplated relate to the methods of payment for the Tsinanfu and Tsingtao railway, which is described as the sole remaining point of difference in the Shantung dispute. These concessions, it is predicted, will insure the practically immediate removal of Shantung as a disturbing factor in Far Eastern politics.

Instructions are to be sent from Tokio to the Japanese delegation at Washington immediately, it is said, after which an announcement of a final agreement on Shantung may be expected at once.

The exact nature of the Japanese concessions is not known, but it is stated on good authority that Japan has accepted the terms proposed by China on nearly all important points. The Public Ledger is in a position to outline the settlement last proposed by China, as follows:

China proposed to buy Japan 's interest in the Shantung railway for thirty million Yen, payable in Chinese treasury notes maturing in 12 years and redeemable any time after three years from date of issue.

China agreed to the employment of an assistant traffic manag and assistant accountant by the Tokio government.

The essential difference between this plan and Tokio's attitude heretofore was Japan's insistance that payment should be with money borrowed from Japan, the loan not to mature for 15 years.

It is understood here that Japan has not entirely receded from that position, but that other concessions were offered which made China willing to accept the new terms offered by Tokio.

CANTON'S HAND SEEN

The reports circulated in Tokio and America to the effect that the Liang Shih-yi government at Peking had yielded to Japan's demand for a loan as the means of paying for the railroad are now declared to have been baseless. It is stated on the contrary that Peking never receded from the position that the payment should be in Chinese treasury notes. It is also stated on good authority that Peking did nothing to undermine the authority of the Chinese delegation at Washington.

Both reports, it is said here, have been traced to Canton sources, where an effort was put on foot as soon as the conference started, to embarrass the Peking government and to alienate from it all influential elements in China. That these efforts bore fruit is indicated by the fact that Gen. Wu Pei-fu, the Central China war lord, has already threatened to make war on the Peking government in the event of Peking "yielding to Japan's demands."

The extraordinary cabinet session at Tokio was called following the receipt of reports from Washington which described the situation there as "extremely delicate," and which impressed Tokio with the importance of the need for immediate action toward settling the Shantung controversy.

Hope is now expressed in Tokio that the new concessions will effectually relegate Shantung to the limbo of dead issues, and prove to both America and the world that Japan sincerely desires to clear up the main problems which block the way to a well based and permanent peace in the Far East.

NEWBERRY WILL RETAIN $195,000 SEAT IN SENATE

Michigan Member Of Upper House Vindicated By 46-41 Vote

(Special To The China Press)

Washington, Jan. 12.—The Senate today voted 46 to 41 in favor of a resolution permitting Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan to retain his seat in the Senate. The vote came after a bitter debate in which the charges made by Henry Ford, Newberry's opponent in the Senatorial election, that he had used large sums of money to gain the election, were thoroughly aired.

The action of the Senate marks the end of the long contest which has been waged between Ford and Newberry. Criminal charges brought against Senator Newberry and a number of his pre-election workers in the United States court in Michigan have been withdrawn.

Military Academy Is To Be Enlarged

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 10.—It is reported that the Military Academy of the Three Eastern Provinces is to be enlarged so as to accommodate cadets from Manchuria, Suiyuan, Charhar, Sinkiang and Kansu, and to be known in future as the North China Military Academy. A proposal to confine its activities to the North-Eastern provinces was opposed by General Chang Tso-lin as too small in its scope.

Vladivostok, Jan. 13.—The White front is still 120 versts beyond Habarovsk and all the Red attacks have been successfully repulsed. The town of Blagoveschtchensk is panic stricken.

Owing to the destroyed bridges not having been repaired, through railway communication between Vladivostok and Habarovsk has not been established.

Longest Suspension Bridge In World To Connect Philadelphia With Camden

A suspension bridge across the Delaware River, linking Philadelphia and Camden, N. J., has been approved by the joint Pennsylvania-New Jersey Commissions. The proposed bridge will surpass by 150 feet the longest suspension bridge in the world. The cost of the bridge and the approaches will be $28,810,000. Six roadways are provided for in the plans. In addition, there are to be four trolley lines and two ten-foot walks for passengers. The East Main River Tower will rise 380 feet above the Delaware River. The span will be 1,750 feet. The illustration shows the engineer's sketch of how the bridge will look after it is completed.

All Our Library Lacks Is An Andrew Carnegie

By Elsie McCormick

When Andrew Carnegie went over the United States sowing white-pillared public libraries with his right hand and collecting steel dividends with his left, he believed that this crop of temples for the pursuit of literature would be a great benefit to the nation. And his hopes have more than been fulfilled. Every loyal citizen can testify that the library is an unexcelled place to drop in during a sudden shower and pick out an umbrella.

It is also the salvation of every high-school girl who wishes to get out in the evening to attend an unchaperoned party at the movies; it is an unrequited blessing to Civil War veterans with a fondness for warm radiators; and it serves beautifully as an evening refuge for the whole family when a call from the landlord is anticipated. The atmosphere of culture is maintained by the faint aroma of glue on the air, the stage whispers, the squeak of shoes as young male visitors try to walk on their toes, and the presence of angular librarians who during the war could always be observed knitting shell pink sweaters for the soldiers in the trenches.

ANGULAR LADIES

We have often wondered why lady librarians at home have more angles than an octagon. It is always said that intimate contact with one of the refined arts broadens a person, but it doesn't seem to work that way with the librarians. Maybe their appearance of malnutrition is the result of the daily agony endured when a flurried lady asks for "The Sun Cow" and the librarian discovers after half an hour's patient search that she was talking about "Moon Calf," or when volumes of which there are no duplicates come back conveying the impression that the family had just run them through the meat-chopper. Perhaps the small boys who hurl spit-balls from the juvenile section to the place where bald-headed gentlemen retired from business are perusing the newspapers have something to do with the librarian's appearance of having just posed for a famine relief picture to be published in the "Survey."

Though there are two libraries open to the general public of Shanghai, neither of them offers anything that corresponds to the social centers, the lounging space, and the romantic rendezvous that libraries are at home. The idea of spending an evening in one of them would seem as strange to a Shanghailander as a suggestion to get one's exercise by pulling a ricsha. The Royal Asiatic Society Library has a collection of 10,000 books principally concerning the Far East. Anyone may use the books in the library, but the right of taking them home is reserved to members of the Society.

We don't know how many books are drawn out by members, but we have observed that surprisingly few people take advantage of their privilege to use the reading-room.

Zionist Paper Pays Tributes To Edward Ezra

The current issue of the local Zionist organ, Israel's Messenger is described as the "Edward Ezra Memorial Number" and contains articles of interest on the career of the deceased. Editorial attention is given covering two pages in the course of which the Editor remarks:—

"It would be difficult to write a complete biography of Edward Ezra, the Zionist and the Communal worker, the useful and indefatigable man in every Jewish cause, but what we write will serve to give some conception, although an inadequate one, of him who has been summoned to the Academy on High. He has his name writ large in the history of our Community, one which the genius of history would delight to recall. His life was a song—almost as a Psalm! Fitz Greene Halleck wrote the following tribute of a friend who had passed to the Great Beyond:—

When hearts whose truth was proven
Like thine, are laid in earth
There should a wreath be woven
To tell the world their worth.

Green the turf above thee
Friend of my better days!
None knew thee but to love thee
Nor named thee but to praise.

"The foregoing may well be placed as an epitaph on Edward Ezra's fresh grave. We may well place a garland of gratitude and the laurel wreath."

Besides the foregoing there are tributes from Sir E. D. H. Fraser, K. C. M. G., Rabbi W. Hirsch, B. A., Mr. Simon A. Levy (President of the Synagogue Beth-El.), Mr. Edward S. Little, Mr. J. E. Salmon, B. A. LL. B., Mr. M. Myers, Mr. Conrad Levy and others. The Messenger is copiously illustrated, and contains the usual quota of interesting and useful articles beyond the confines of the Jewish race.

BRIAND'S RESIGNATION MAY BE FATAL BLOW TO REBUILDING OF EUROPE

Dramatic Action Of French Premier "Torpedoes Cannes And Genoa Conferences," London Fears; British Bitterly Disappointed

NATIONALISTS IN SADDLE AT PARIS

Stormy Scenes In Chamber Of Deputies As Former Government Leader Attempts To Justify His Position At Cannes Parley

BY WYETH WILLIAMS
European correspondent of the Public Ledger and the China Press.

Cannes, France, Jan. 13.—This is the most critical day in Europe since the armistice. The dramatic suddenness with which Premier Briand, of France, left the conference now in session to appear before the Deputies in Paris, followed by the startling news of his resignation, has brought the work of the conference to a halt. These events, it is feared, have also brought to a halt all the plans that were so well under way for the reconstruction of Europe on a practical basis.

The British are manifestly disappointed, and are openly saying that the French here, as at Washington, are obstructing the conference, first agreeing to everything in principle and then preventing accomplishment. The British say that the French, by these tactics, are isolating themselves from the world.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 13.—M. Briand's resignation comes as a bitter disappointment to British hopes. It has torpedoed the Cannes Conference and possibly also the Genoa conference, for it is considered impossible to continue the Cannes discussions in the absence of France, while the Genoa meeting is dependent upon the ratification of the resolutions adopted at Cannes.

Though M. Briand followed the frequent French custom of resigning as soon as it was foreshadowed that confidence would be withheld, the dramatic suddenness of his resignation startled the Chamber. For an hour he used his brilliant eloquence, trying to overcome the hostility of the Chamber, but owing to the storm of interruptions he was unable to complete his speech or explain the terms of the Anglo-French pact.

PREMIER CALM

Stung by the nationalist taunt that Great Britain had no army, M. Briand protested against the reports of his intention to surrender French rights and, concluding, said: "I have told you what I have done. Others may do better." He then quietly left the Tribune before the Deputies realised what had happened and walked out of the Chabmer followed by the whole Cabinet. His resignation was only formally announced a few hours afterwards.

M. Poincare has been entrusted with the task of forming a new Cabinet. It will be interesting to see how the nationalists, if they should gain power, will grapple with realities such as reparations and foreign relations, particularly as regards America, upon which Europe is greatly relying for help in reconstruction.

The morning papers emphasise that the value of Mr. Lloyd George's Anglo-French pact is not lost as it is known to all the world and will certainly be seriously pondered over by the French people.

The Times expresses the opinion that whether M. Briand returns to power or another, the insistent palpable facts of the situation will compel the new Government to approach the same goal aimed at by M. Briand. The journal also emphasises the paramount need for Anglo-French co-operation.

HIS SPEECH TRYING

Paris, Jan. 12.—M. Briand's speech was delivered in trying circumstances. The Premier several times disgustedly packed up his manuscripts owing to interruptions but was persuaded to continue. On the restoration of order by the President, M. Briand warmly insisted that French interests were not being neglected and paid a moving tribute to British sincerity. He declared that Great Britain's land and sea forces would be beside France in the event of a menace of the latter's frontiers. This was greeted by a cry from the right "Great Britain has no army." A sensation followed M. Briand's concluding statement, accompanied by a disheartened gesture, "I have no right to go forward to battle if I am not sure of not receiving a knife in the back."

Paris, Jan. 12.—M. Briand has telegraphed to Mr. Lloyd George expressing the opinion that his successor will be able to resume the Anglo-French discussions and accomplish the plans which both had in view.

The French Chamber will reassemble next Thursday. President Millerand has summoned M. Poincare who is regarded as a favorite for the Premiership.

Washington, Jan. 12.—The news of M. Briand's resignation has been received with dismay in Conference circles.

Washington, Jan. 12.—Mr. Balfour expressed the opinion that M. Briand's resignation would not appreciably affect the Conference. The leading American delegates concurred with this view while elsewhere in American official circles some uncertainty was expressed with regard to the new French Government's attitude toward battleship limitation and other questions. In the meantime M. Sarraut will remain at Washington.

Paris, Jan. 12.—It has been clear for the past few days that M. Briand had lost contact with feeling in Paris regarding the major questions of the Cannes agenda.

The Premier today took the bull by the horns, outlining his policy before the Chamber, especially repudiating the French

Good Roads Work Meeting Success, Fund Is Raised

The campaign of the good roads movement of China for a fund of $30,000 has been a tremendous success. Already $31,560 have been collected and all the committees have not yet reported.

The movement will shortly be reorganised on a more efficient basis so that it can assist in the building of good roads throughout China, but more particularly in the district between Shanghai and Nanking and Shanghai and Hangchow. Lecturers and engineers will be engaged to educate the people to favor good roads and to assist companies which have been organised to build them.

It is hoped that several returned students who are making a speciality of road engineering in colleges abroad will be able to give their full time to this work when they return to China.

British Forces In Ireland On Move

(China Press Service)

Dublin, Jan. 12.—The British forces today began evacuating Dublin Castle. Sinn Fein women's organisations voted 24 to 2 to refuse to support the treaty.

London, Jan. 12.—The King today issued a proclamation making a general amnesty with respect to political offenses committed in Ireland. The release of prisoners will begin immediately. Approximately 1000 are involved.

Belfast, Jan. 12.—Three women were shot, one fatally, by armed men last night. The assailants went to the homes of the women, knocked at their doors, and when they appeared shot them down.

opposition to participation in the Genoa conference, when the United States had agreed to participate in it, and emphasising the readiness of the majority of the Reparations Commission to grant Germany a moratorium.

TAKE IT OR LEAVE IT

Evincing an attitude of take-it or leave-it, M. Briand divined the unfriendly attitude of the House and did not give it an opportunity for an adverse vote.

M. Hillerand immediately accepted his resignation, the news of which came as a thunderclap to Cannes, where the deliberations have thus been rendered abortive. M. Loucheur announced his intention of returning immediately to Paris, although the Conference continued to listen to Dr. Rathenau's statement. The other delegations subsequently began to make preparations to return home.

London, Jan. 12.—The German delegation to Cannes will be examined before the Supreme Council today. In the meantime Dr. Walther Rathenau, as its principal spokesman, appeared before the Reparations Commission this morning to explain the reason for the requested moratorium. He showed remarkable skill in evading the Commissioners' questions and in advancing arguments in support of his case. He offered 404,000,000 gold marks, accompanied by conditions relating to deliveries in kind, instead of 720,000,000 and asserted that the German trade balance showed a deficit of 1,500,000,000, which conflicts with other evidence in the possession of the Commission.

Dr. Rathenau further offered guarantees in the shape of higher railway, postal and telegraphic rates, reduction of food subsidies and an increased price of coal.

Small committees of German and Allied experts will study the facts and figures.

The Germans brought ten trunks of documents with them to the Conference.

Gets Two-Year Term For Counterfeiting

Sentence of two years' imprisonment was passed by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li of the Mixed Court yesterday on a Chinese found in possession of 2,000 counterfeit notes on the Yee Shing Bank, of Swatow.

Lee, it was shown by police investigation conducted by Detective Inspector Reeves, had gone to a Chinese printer at 319 Shantung Road and ordered the notes made, without the bank's chop. When he returned later and asked that the chop be included the printer became alarmed and sent an inquiry to the bank, which communicated with Mr. R. F. C. Masters here. The defendant was arrested when he called for the bills.

The Court ordered ten of the bogus notes sent to the Swatow Chamber of Commerce as examples of the counterfeits for fear of previous issues and ordered the others destroyed.

Sir Parks' Niece Takes Post Here

Miss Nora Parks Jarvis, great niece of Sir Henry Parks whose statue now stands on the Bund and granddaughter of Dr. William Lockhart, founder of the Peking University, has arrived in Shanghai to join the staff of the foreign secretaries of the Y.W.C.A. In the fall Miss Jarvis will be associated with the department of physical education of the National Y. W. C. A. in Shanghai.

She was formerly teacher of physical education at Goucher College Baltimore and at Bryn Mawr. Miss Jarvis also taught gymnasium in South America for six years. She is a graduate of Osterberg Physical Training College in Kent, England.

Woman's Club Hears Fine Music Program

The Music Department of the American Woman's Club presented a program of interest Thursday afternoon at Mrs. Bardarson's apartment in the Astor House. Mrs. M. C. Guss read a paper on "The Romantic School of Music" which was illustrated with selections by Schubert, Chopin, Haydn, Schumann, Mozart, Franz and Mendelssohn. The soloists were Miss Bostwick, Mrs. Graham, Miss Austin, and Mrs. Van Camp.

Mrs. Guss traced the development of the Romantic movement in literature to the poets who at the close of the 18th century went back for their themes to the tales of the Middle Ages and hence called romances and showed how turn musical composers were inspired by these departures from the classical models and a more imaginative and unrestricted style of music was the happy result.

Office Boy To Jail For Forging Orders

A seventeen-year-old office boy employed by Andersen, Meyer and Co. was sentenced to six months' imprisonment by the Mixed Court yesterday for forging the name of Mr. C. E. M. PROGRESSIVES IN JAPAN TO HAVE CONTROL OF DIET

Universal Suffrage By Degrees, Program Of Party

(Eastern News Agency)

Tokio, Jan. 12.—The forthcoming Diet, which is to be convened for the first time since the death of Mr. Hara, is attracting much attention in many quarters. As there are at the present time numerous domestic and foreign affairs of utmost importance, stratagems of political parties friendly to the Government and of non-Government parties are being watched with keen interest. The Seiyukai Party is endeavoring to support the present Cabinet, the leaders complying as much as possible with the minds of the members of the party.

With regard to the universal suffrage question, the Seiyukai Party is of opinion that inasmuch as the tendency of the times has not been so radically changed as to necessitate any further alteration in the Government policy, it would rather be proper to put the proposed universal suffrage into effect by degrees after the people of Japan have acquired sufficient education and experience.

Regarding the financial and economic policy, the Government is according to the Seiyukai Party taking measures compatible with the trend of the times. As for Japan's diplomatic questions, the Government is devising means to solve them amicably.

The Kenseikai party is expected to attack the Government regarding Japan's failure at the Washington Conference as well as her policy towards China and Siberia. The party also is prepared to impeach the Government on the ground that the latter has not only bred national unrest and deteriorated national thought but also has caused Japan's foreign trade to become stagnant. The Kenseikai will also press hard on the Government on the questions of consolidating finance, administration, and taxation system, raising the status of colleges to universities, subsidising the expenses of compulsory education by the treasury, purifying administration, and universal suffrage in co-operation with other parties.

The Kokuminto party, while taking absolutely a free stand, is expected to criticise strictly in accordance with its pronounced policy. It is most likely that the Kokuminto party will place the bill for the reduction by half of military divisions of Japan before the Diet.

It is generally surmised that unless something extraordinary occurs, the Government will come out victorious at the forthcoming Diet. The following are the numbers of members belonging at present to different parties in the House of Representatives: The Seiyukai party, 282; Kenseikai, 109; Kokuminto, 27; Koshin Club, 26; independent party, 18.

MEXICAN PARLIAMENT

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, Jan. 10.—The Mexican Legation has received the following telegram, dated January 6, from the Government of Mexico:

"The closing sitting of the House of Representatives on December 31 last took place without trouble and the Permanent Commission was satisfactorily installed in accordance with the Constitution. Some friction arose in the course of discussions between the members of certain political parties, but without serious consequences."

1921 Building In U. S. Shows Gain

(China Press Service)

New York, Jan. 12.—Bradstreet's announced that building in the United States in 1921 totalled $1,597,185,192, a gain of 14.9 percent over the record year of 1920. It reports that 150 cities expended $120,904,839 in building in December, an increase of 112.8 percent over last December.

Will Seek To Raise $200,000 For Relief Of Famine Districts

A campaign for famine relief subscriptions is being organised by the Chinese-Foreign Famine Relief Society. It is planned to have 20 teams, each named after a stricken district in the famine areas of Kiangsu, Chekiang and Anhuei. Each team is to be responsible for the raising of $10,000, the goal of the drive being set at $200,000.

Italian Bank To Get Outside Help

(Reuter's Service)

Rome, Jan. 12.—It is reported from trustworthy sources that negotiations are progressing to reconstitute the Banca Italiana Disconto with Italian and foreign capital. Mr. Otto Kahn of the United States and M. Dreyfus of Paris are expected to participate in the new concern. The Italian commercial delegation issued a statement to the effect that the Banca Italiana Disconto opened on Tuesday by the authority of the tribunal to transact certain business including the opening of new current accounts, the collection of Bills and the purchase and sale of Government bonds. There is every hope of shortly removing all remaining difficulties.

AMERICAN PRIESTS LEAVE SHANGHAI ON WAY TO HUNAN

Six American priests of the Passionist Order left Shanghai last night on the second lap of their long journey to Hunan where they will found the first Passionist Mission in China. The American Fathers, with one lay brother, are sailing for Hankow on the Tuckwo, which leaves at midnight.

In their short stay in Shanghai they have been entertained by local Catholics. While here they spent a day at Siccawei where they were shown all over the immense plant by the Jesuit Fathers.

From Hankow, the missioners will got to Shenchawfu by way of Yochow and Changteh.

The group is made up of men selected from various cities in the Eastern United States and is headed by Father Celestine Roddan, a Boston man and a noted preacher of the Passionist Order. The others are Father Timothy McDermott, Father Flavian Mullins, Father Raphael Vance, Father Herman Budd, Father Agatho Purtill and Brother Lambert.

Landslide Buries Scores In Italy

(Special To The China Press)

Messina, Sicily, Jan. 12.—Landslides have wiped out the village of San Fratello. It is believed that scores have been buried. Two bodies have been recovered.

Relief workers believe there are nine persons entombed in their homes. There has been incessant rain, which was probably the cause of the landslides.

Liang Reported Ready To Resign

(Dah Tong News Bureau)

Peking, Jan. 13.—It is reported that Liang Shih-yi, premier of the new cabinet, has already prepared plans in connection with his resignation which is under contemplation. He expects that President Hsu will succeed to ward off the opposition of the Chihli party but in any case he has no intention of leaving the cabinet until the new loan of $90,000,000 has been concluded and will keep up his denials of playing false to the country in connection with the negotiations over the Shantung question at Washington.

SPANISH "CRISIS"

(Reuter's Service)

Madrid, Jan. 13.—It is now stated that the report that the King had refused to sign the decree presented by the Minister of War, Senor Lacierva, was inaccurate. It is explained that His Majesty only wished to postpone his signature.

It is expected that Senor Maura will form a new Cabinet, excluding Senor Lacierva.

Job Hunters Blamed For Attacks On New Cabinet

Peking Hears That War On Premier Would Cease If Two Ex-Officials Were "Taken Care Of"—Gen. Wu In Difficult Role

Peking, Jan. 10.—Peking, in common with Shanghai and other parts of China is seething with propaganda against Premier Liang Shih-yi. The efforts of the propagandists, however, appear to extend to conference circles at Washington, where Mr. Ma Su is reported to be striving to belittle the new Cabinet with added vigor since it became known that a Customs increase would be granted.

In Peking the agents of Messrs. Chang Shih-tang and Pan Fu are said to be responsible for the frequent attacks on Mr. Liang, but through all the propaganda appears the name of General Wu Pei-fu. General Wu seems to have been misled regarding the New Cabinet's attitude towards the Shantung question, but this matter is officially stated to have been explained.

There is reason also to believe that General Wu is chagrined at the pardoning of the Anfuite Militarists, and has made representations to Peking about it.

Further than this General Wu does not seem to have gone. The opponents of the Premier, however, must have some actual force to quote in their crusade and there is no doubt that many liberties are being taken with the name of General Wu Pei-fu.

No one believes that General Wu Pei-fu is pleased with the Cabinet changes and it remains to be seen further whether he will offer actual opposition to the Cabinet. It was reported last evening that he was coming to Paotingfu for a conference with General Tsao Kun, but this report has been proved incorrect. General Wu was at Laoyang last evening and apparently had no intention of leaving there for the moment.

It is very difficult for foreigners to place their true value on political attacks of a Chinese Administration. Frequently they are merely made with the intention of securing official positions, the price of cessation. This is the explanation given in official circles today of the attacks on the Premier.

It is hinted that the Government possesses evidence that General Wu Pei-fu is not connected with some of the messages that have reached Peking in his name, and that an intimation has been received that the troubles of the new Cabinet would quickly grow less if two former officials were given important posts. The chief danger is thought to lie in the possibility of General Wu Pei-fu and other important Chihli leaders being again misled by the Peking propagandists, who are believed to be just as busy at Paotingfu, Laoyang, Wuchang and Sianfu as they are in Peking.

CHANG STANDS FIRM

Peking, Jan. 10.—Telegrams have been received from the two warlords, Generals Chang Tso-lin and Tsao Kun, according to reliable Chinese sources, in which these two men declare their confidence in the present Liang Cabinet and say that they believe that as far as it has gone the work of the new Government has been good, that Liang was himself capable, and that he must have more time to carry out his plans, before final judgment is passed upon him. The telegram from Tsao Kun, however, does not purport to contain the opinion of General Wu Pei-fu, and Tsao Kun says that he believes that Wu has simply misunderstood the situation.

The Mukden War-lord, Chang, says that the full confidence in the Liang cabinet, and that its work of retrenchment has thus far been well done, and better than the work of any previous cabinet. He lays the attacks on the Shantung question and the report about conversations between Minister Obata and Liang Shih-yi to the numerous office holders that have been eliminated in the Liang scheme of retrenchment that is apparently hitting home very strongly.

General Tsao Kun takes much the same position, and says that the Liang Cabinet must be given time to carry out its policies. He says that he is trying to use his influence with General Wu Pei-fu, who, he believes, entirely misunderstood the situation with regard to the attitude of the Cabinet toward the Shantung Question. He also call attention to the fact that the Liang Cabinet has said that its policy on foreign affairs is the same as that of their predecessors.

preparing a paper to be read before their club. To those character enthusiasts we are indebted for a real idea. If we write anything about China at home we are going to sprinkle the article as full of characters as a homeside picnic ground is of poison ivy. We won't know what the characters mean, but then neither will anybody else except the laundryman and we can bribe him not to tell.

The public library of Shanghai, having no Andrew Carnegie to endow it, is without a white granite portico or a marble veranda held up by ladies who evidently dressed in a great hurry. Tucked away underneath the Town Hall, it is the kind of room which always gives the impression that it's raining outside. The only cheerful thing about it is Mrs. H. Allen, librarian, who has somehow escaped the fatal trademarks worn by members of her guild at home.

To us, the most astonishing thing about the library is that in a city of several thousand foreigners, there are only 450 subscribers. (This is the figure the librarian gave me, but it does seem abnormally small. Do you think she can mean the increase for one year.—E.McC.) We have always known that Shanghai preferred to confine its reading to menu cards and to the electric-lighted signs that announce "Waltz," "Fox-trot," and "One-step," but we didn't realise that there was as little interest in literature as the statistics indicate.

What the subscribers lack in number, they seem to make up in voracity, for the report shows that 36,283 books were delivered to them in 1921. Of this number, 30,519 were works of fiction and a paltry 5,764 dealt with travel and miscellaneous subjects. Mrs. Allen states that certain subscribers draw out the maximum allowance of four books every morning, send them back late in the day, and clamor for four more the next morning. We don't know how they finish them so fast unless they wear bifocal glasses and read a different book with each part of the lense.

DIFFICULTIES HERE

Though not required to supervise a salon, a lovers' retreat, and a day nursery in the manner of the librarian at home, Mrs. Allen finds that even Shanghai offers its difficulties. There are people who own literary dogs with a special taste for current fiction, there are those individuals who would like to be up-to-date and who send in vague requests for "three new books," and there is that peculiar breed of book insect that disagrees with the author and makes marginal notes to that effect as long as his indelible ink holds out. There being no children department, the librarian is at least spared the difficulty of eradicating baptisms of marmalade and punctuation in the form of grimy finger-prints.

The Shanghai library has approximately 18,000 volumes. Those who complain that most of the books are so ancient that they are in the form of Babylonian bricks will soon have small cause for their remarks. Formerly every book had to be ordered from abroad; recently the committee gave the librarian the privilege of buying volumes in Shanghai which means that new books will be on the shelves at least three months earlier than heretofore. As the majority of the subscribers are now Americans, more attention will be given to the purchase of books by American authors. A suggestion book has been placed in the library so that subscribes may indicate their preferences.

EXTENSION PLANS

There are plans for the expansion of the library rooms during 1922 and the addition of a reference library that will be of special value to teachers and pupils. The halving of the fees, which has made the price of subscription $8 for a year, $4.50 for six months, and $2.50 for three months will undoubtedly mean a considerable increase in the number of members. Perhaps after all the public library of Shanghai may someday come to resemble the granite confections of Mr. Carnegie's, with easy chairs for those who have no place else to go and cosy corners for couples who appreciate a little privacy.

The most popular library in Shanghai, however, has neither shelves, nor card-index files, nor rules and regulations. All it does is circulate. If you are a newcomer to the city, you probably believe that the book you got for Christmas or that you bought with your hard-earned money is your book. It isn't. It's the property of the community, as you will learn as soon as an acquisitive friend spots it in your bookcase. He will borrow it, and his friend will borrow it, and his friend's friend will borrow it and the next time you'll see it will be several months later when you note a perfect stranger reading it in the tram. When you get it back again, if you ever do, you'll find that some destructive person has removed its appendix or performed some other major operation. But inasmuch as it has acquired a full cargo of love letters, cream lotions, and interesting chits that borrowers have forgotten to remove from its pages, you will find reading matter even more interesting than the book itself.

Chinese Seamen Demand Pay Increases—Liners Unaffected

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Jan. 13.—The local coastal river shipping has been almost paralysed by a strike of Chinese seamen, which commenced this morning, the Seamen's Union demanding an increase of 30 percent in the case of members drawing $30 per month and 40 percent in the case of members whose wages are under $30.

It is expected that the number of strikers will reach 2,000, many of whom are going to Canton where they will be temporarily lodged in the Union's boarding-houses.

Among the companies affected are Messrs. Butterfield and Swire, the Indo-China Steam Navigation Company, the Admiral Line, the Pacific Mail, the Robert Dollar, the Douglas Steamship Company and the Canton-Macao Steamboat Company.

The Japanese companies and the ships on the Shanghai run, whose crews are natives of Ningpo, are not affected. The men on the big ocean-going vessels are not participating in the strike.

Fourteen League Soccer Teams Hope To Play Today

If Fields Are Dry Some Good Football Will Be Had

With rain driving down at midnight and fields all wet it seems wrong to announce football for today but the matches are scheduled, and the weather prophets promise improving weather before game time, so perhaps they may be played.

Seven league matches are scheduled, all of the first division being billed for the Race Course enclosure. The League leaders, the Football Club meet the Portuguese on their own grounds, the Engineers play the customs on the Polo field, and the Recs and Police hope to go through a stiff match on the S. R. C. field.

The second league will provide one extra good game, that between the S. F. C. 2nd and the Public School, holders of first and second places in the division. The game will be played at Hongkew. It is certain to be keenly contested. The Club's eleven is as strong as ever, and the School boys are confident, since their win last week over the Engineers of coming out best today.

Referees have been selected as follows:

First League.—Recs vs. Police: Mr. Bissett. Engineers vs. Customs: Mr. Hampson. Club vs. Portuguese: Mr. Gabbutt.

Second League—Public School vs. Club: Mr. Landers. Navy v Recs. Mr. Jones. Portuguese vs. Rangers: Mr. Bridges. Jewish Club vs. Elec. Dept.: Mr. Wegener.

The following players have been announced:

British Harriers May Visit America

The Autumn of the coming year will see cross-country runners from Oxford or Cambridge, or both in action in America. Though no definite plan for a return of the visit of the Cornell harriers to England last Winter has been formulated, it is believed that the British universities will send their teams to the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. cross-country championship race next Autumn and, failing in this, there may be some arrangements for an international hill and dale contest during the Christmas holidays.

It is declared that the British collegians will hardly be able to leave their studies as early as November 1, when it would be necessary for them to sail from home so that they could reach the United States in time to limber up their legs for the I. C. A. A. A. A. run in the middle of the month.

That the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. authorities have in mind the coming of one or more of the teams from the English universities, sooner or later, is evidenced by the manner in which the cross-country course in Van Courtlandt Park was "Anglicised" early this Fall. Aside from the ploughed field running and the fording of a small river, the local course is now a very fair counterpart of the famous Roehampton course over which the Cornell team lost a close decision to the combined teams of Oxford and Cambridge a year ago.

Should the Britons accept the expected invitation and find it necessary to sail for the United States as late as the middle of December, the problem of finding a suitable place for the running of the international race at so late a date will be a difficult one, due to the danger of bumping into a baby blizzard, as the A. A. U. did one year when the national cross-country championship race was run, or rather attempted, in December.

S. V. C. COMPETITION

There will be no match tomorrow in the S.V.C. tournament. The match between the M. G. C. and the Portuguese Co. will be played on February 5. The Shanghai Scottish will play the Field Artillery Battery on January 22 to decide who is to play in the finals. The final will be played on February 26 and on the following Sunday the Winners v. The Rest.

HARRIERS' RUN TODAY

The Shanghai Harriers' Club will hold a training run over a four miles course in Kiangwan district today starting from the American School at 3 p.m.

There will be fast, medium and slow packs to be selected by the Club's captain and vice-captain, also a team race. The run takes place wet or fine. Athletes interested are invited to have a trial run.

Nap Rucker To Coach Dodger Rookie Pitchers

Nap Rucker, one of the best left-handed twirlers in the history of the game, who helped to keep Brooklyn on the baseball map many years before the club ever won a pennant, is coming back to the team as an assistant to Manager Robinson. Nap since he left his cotton plantation has been acting as a scout, but starting with the coming Spring he is going to coach the Dodger rookie twirlers while Robby is looking after the veterans.

Strokeside Beat Their Club-mates In Fast Game

Armstrong Forces Public School To Hustle For Its Win

A few spectators saw two rattling good games of basketball at the Rowing club last night, when the Strokeside nosed out after trailing the score to the Bowside, and the Shanghai Public School, after a nip and tuck struggle finally beat Anderson Meyer's quintet.

The Strokeside-Bowside match was a hummer. It was the first time the two teams had met in this year's schedule, and each side was fighting for club supremacy. The Strokeside played without Neprud, who still nurses a bad leg from the American football game December 31 but Johnson, Goldman and the Nash boys pulled them through in a strong finish.

The Bowside men led off in the point getting. Hale and Heinzerlinger at forward and Smith at center formed a strong trio, and their guards came up with the ball in nice style. At half time they led the Strokeside by 15 points to 13. Combination, accurate shooting and aggressive play gave the Strokeside a run-away in the last half, though the few baskets counted by the losers kept the final score fairly close.

Anderson Meyer showed up for their game with the school, exactly one man strong. That was Armstrong. He recruited a five from the side lines and gave the School the keenest struggle they have ever had for a win. Armstrong was easily the best man on his side. He counted two thirds of his team's points and helped toward many more.

At the end of the first period the School was ahead 19-16. The play in the last half was fast and hard, with either team taking and losing the lead in turn. The score was Anderson Meyer 31, School 30 just a few minutes before the final whistle. A last desperate rally gave two

Navy Basketeers Lose To St. John's

The cruiser Wilmington's basketball team, composed of Holohan, Kois, Welch, Snider and McManus lost a good game Thursday night to the newly organised student five at St John's university. The final score was 32-22. At half time St. John's led 12-10. Seveh fouls imposed on the navy, all converted into scores, together with a marked need for practice lost the game for the sailors. The Wilmington men have about decided not to take on any more games unless they can be provided with space, morning, noon or night on some local floor, for practicing.

RECOGNITION WAS BAR TO SOVIETS' PACT WITH DANES

Denmark's Foreign Minister Backed Out On Eve Of Signing

(Rosta News Agency)

Mossow. Jan. 9.—Mr. Kerjentseff, the representative of Soviet Russia in Sweden, on his recent return to Moscow, said concerning the interruption of the Danish negotiations.

"It was due to the special instructions of the Danish Minister of Foreign Affairs to his representatives almost on the eve of signing the agreement. The Foreign Minister, Mr. Skavenarius, acted on the ground of my categorical refusal to remove from the treaty a clause stipulating the recognition of the Soviet delegation at Copenhagen as the sole representative of Russia in Denmark. This clause is necessary as there are many representatives of the Tsardom who claim to be representatives of the Russian people. Copenhagen continues to be the center of counter-revolutionary activities, where Russian passports are issued, money supplied to their agents, etc. Mr. Skavenarius informed the press that the negotiations were interrupted because Russia offered Denmark unfavorable economic conditions. I immediately denied this.

"On the other hand, the Danish manufacturers have declared officially to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs that they consider the economic conditions, proposed by the Russian delegation, acceptable. The Danish press, as a result of the interruption of the negotiations, is very much dissatisfied. An interpellation in the Danish Parliament was introduced by the socialist deputies, which caused stormy debates in a number of sessions of the Parliament. According to Danish newspaper reports, further changes in the Danish Cabinet are impending, and the new Minister of Foreign Affairs is expected to be a sympathiser of Russia."

Famine Worker Arrives In Russia

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Jan. 9.—Mr. Stillman of Berlin, a member of the International Russian Famine Relief Committee, has arrived at Novorossisk to receive the donations arriving from abroad for dispatch to the Volga famine district.

Alarming news comes from the once prosperous districts. The population of Melitopol, Meriupol, Alexandrov, Harkov, Novonikolaiev, Odessa and Ekaterinoslav districts have been affected by famine. In the Mariupol district alone 100,000 people out of a population of 160,000 are in dire need of assistance. Especially catastrophical is the situation of the children. The children's homes are closed.

Carpentier Scores "K. O." Over Cook

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 12.—At the Albert Hall this evening, Georges Carpentier, light heavyweight champion of the world, knocked out George Cook, heavyweight champion of Australia, in the fourth round.

Chinese Boxer Enroute Orient

Georgie Lee, of Tacoma, Chinese bantamweight, accompanied by his manager is now on his way to the Orient to try his luck.

Ancil Hoffman, Sacramento fight promoter, with his wife and family, and with Lee sailed on the Empress of Asia for the Orient. Hoffman gave no inkling of his plans in the Far East, but the natural assumption is that he will match Lee with a number of good boys who are known to be across the water. It is likely that he will also invade China, where Lee should be acclaimed.

Lee, while more or less a consistent loser, is known as a tough boy. He lost the 10-round bout in Vancouver to Danny Edwards and has lost a decision to Midget Smith, whom he fought in Madison Square Garden. He has met many of the best bantams of the country and is regarded as a strong card whenever he appears, being able apparently to absorb any amount of punishment.

American School To Hold College Exams

After a number of years of persistent effort the American School has succeeded in securing the examinations given by the American College Entrance Examination Board. The Principal yesterday received notice from the Secretary, Mr. Thomas S. Fiske, that the Board has decided to establish a center for college entrance examinations in the Orient. Effort to bring these examinations to China were begun by Prof. Guy C. Stockton some years ago, but the Examination Board has been very conservative

The examinations this year will be given during the week beginning June 19 at the American School, and will be open to all students in China—Chinese, American or to students of other nationalities who desire to go to America to college. The last date for applications is March 31.

Hankow Market

The British Chamber of Commerce at Hankow write as follows in their weekly circular dated Hankow, January 4.

FINANCE & MONEY MARKET

Bar silver was quoted in London on 3rd instant at 34.½d ready 34.⅝d forward, being ¼d lower respectively since our last report. In the interim the quotations advanced to 35.⅛d ready 34.⅞d forward. The stock of silver in Shanghai on December 29 was estimated to be Ts. 26,450,000 and $22.400,000. Exchange quotations have declined 1d to T. T. 3-6, 4 m-s Credits 3-9¼. A premium of 1d in the T. T. rate has been obtainable in some quarters for near delivery, while 4 m-s Credits can be placed at 3-9 January delivery with a cut for forward. The New York-London cross rate is 421.½. Chinese market rates;—Shanghai Taels 97.10. Local currency Dollars 70.7. Native interest 12 percent p.a. Although the native interest rate is comparatively low, the market is tight.

EXPORTS

Owing to the holidays business was rather slack, except perhaps for a little activity in raw cotton. Tallow, hides, and goatskins were firm while wood oil was slighty easier. The market for cotton was stronger. Nothing doing in Sesamum seed.

IMPORTS

Piece Goods:—The market reopened quietly after the holidays, and the demand experienced last week ceased. Clearances were poor.

Yarn:—Nothing of interest to report.

THE NEW MYSTERIOUS FACTOR-IN-FOOD.

Science discovers that thousands suffer from lack of one vital element in their food.

A CERTAIN mysterious element in food called VITAMINE! Science has established that our store of energy and even health itself depend upon it.

One of America's most eminent physiological chemists says: "Long continued—general debility follows the continued ingestion of food containing too little of this vitamine."

Primitive man secured an abundance of vitamine from his raw foods and green leafy vegetables. But modern diet, refined and modified, has often been deprived of much of the water-soluble vitamine. That is why so many seemingly well-fed people are slowly lowering their vitality from day to day without knowing it.

The richest source of the precious water-soluble vitamine is—yeast, just yeast!

To get enough of this vitamine so essential to health thousands are already eating Fleischmann's Yeast, and are finding new stores of health and energy, and a vigor unknown for years. Physicians and hospitals are prescribing it to stimulate the appetite, help digestion and gradually take the place of laxatives.

Eat Fleischmann's Yeast before or between meals—from 1 to 3 cakes a day. It has a rich cream-cheesy consistency and distinctive flavor you will like. Nibble it from the cake or spread it with butter on crackers, toast or bread. Only one precaution: If troubled with gas, dissolve yeast first in boiling water.

Colds are mainly the result of a lowered Vitality. Fleismann's Yeast stimulates your resistance and helps digest the increased food which the appetite demands. The Bakerite Bakery, 36 Nanking Road, is using it in all their broads and beginning January 10, 1922, have arranged for the continued importation of it in cold storage and can supply it fresh in limited quantities.

NOTICE

Notice is hereby given that, contrary to statement published in local papers from December 10th to December 17th, 1921, the copartnership of Struthers & Barry is not a successor of Struthers & Dixon, Inc. Struthers & Barry have only succeeded to the steamship services formerly operated by Struthers & Dixon, Inc., through re-allocation by the U. S. Shipping Board of the vessels employed.

Effective December 1st, 1921, the undersigned purchased from Struthers & Dixon, Inc., its offices at Yokohama, Kobe, Shanghai, Hongkong and Manila, taking over the personnel at each office, and at the same time being appointed General Agent for Struther & Barry for the Philippine Islands, China and Japan, in which territory their business will be conducted in their name by my respective offices.

Mr. W. B. Lunt, appointed Acting General Agent by me as of December 1st, 1921, is no longer in my employ, and effective as of January 9th, 1922, the power of attorney held by him has been withdrawn.
(signed) L. EVERETT.

January 13, 1922

Spot and forward bar silver were each down ¼d. in London yesterday.

The New York price declined to 65¾ cents, and the London-New York cross rate to 423¾.

The official Sterling rate here this morning was dropped to 3-5½, the Gold Dollar rate to 73, the Franc rate to 880, and the Yen rate raised to 65½.

Our market throughout the morning was steady, with sellers of Sterling at 3-6⅛ for January, 3-5½ for February and 3-5¼ for March.

There were sellers of Gold Dollars at 74½ for January, 73½ for February and 73 for March.

The market was quiet and more or less featureless.

The Continent and China sold silver in London yesterday, and bears bought.

New York report their silver market as being weak, with small buyers for spot delivery but no buyers for forward.

The Week's Market Report

In their weekly report on the Shanghai Piece-Goods Trade, Messrs. Noel, Murray and Company write as follows:

Cotton.—Prices in Liverpool have again weakened and on the 10th inst. Spot Good Middlings were quoted 10.72d. The forward rates were March 10.47d. and May 10.38d. Bengal cotton was down to 8.25d. and Egyptians to 21.25d. In Bombay also prices have weakened to Rs. 323 for F. G. Bengals, Rs. 419 for Fine Oomras and Rs. 475 for F. G. Broach. In New York yesterday Spot was lower by 85 points at 18.20 cents, March 17.82 cents, The Ginning report to January 1 last gives 7,884,000 bales (counting 2 round bales, as one bale). This compares with 11,555,000 bales in 1921, 10,009,000 bales in 1920 and 10,774,000 bales on January 1, 1919.

Home Market.—We understand that a little buying has been done of special cloths, but the aggregate yardage so bought must be trifling.

Local Market.—We learn that dealers have placed very considerable quantities of their recent purchases and should be in a position to require new supplies early in February, which gives promise for a better state of things after the Settlement has passed.

Financial.—In Bars and Sycee, there are Tls. 29,035,000 worth of silver in all the Banks and $21,400,000; of which the native concerns hold Tls. 8,590,000 and $12,960,000.

Yarn.—200 bales of Indian yarn have been sold and 3,550 bales of Local Spinnings have been contracted for by the Chinese-owned mills. Also the retailers have bought 6,500 bales for resale in bundles.

Auctions.—Again this week there was a big offering of Piece Goods, as things go now-a-days, and 59,147 pieces were sold. The hammers will now be silent until February 7. Grey and White Shirtings were a little irregular in price but on the whole the rises offset the falls. T-Cloths were a few candareens lower, Sheetings and Jeans went both ways. Velvets have been advanced too far of late and they went back again a few candareens. Without any very big changes, Italians and Venetians closed at fairly steady prices.

ROSENFELD REPORT

In their weekly report on the Cotton Market, Messrs. A. B. Rosenfeld and Son write as follows:

China Cotton.—During the past week the speculative bull movement, to which we alluded in our last report, has collapsed, resulting in a weak and unsettled market, with a succession of rather violent breaks, which carried prices to a materially lower level. As is usual under such conditions, the bullish enthusiasm which prevailed only a short time ago has to a great extent subsided, and the majority of traders are probably more disposed than heretofore to view the market from both sides.

From the above it will be seen that whatever views are entertained as to the ultimate course of prices, a conservative policy appears to be desirable for the immediate future. The situation continues to hinge on future developments on the "Indian Cotton and Silver" markets, and our opinion, in view of the weak tendency of exchange, is that the chance for successful operations after Chinese New Year Holidays lies on the bull side.

Yarn.—During the past week the market has been keeping steady, prices receded some 2 to 3 taels. In all some 4,000 to 5,000 bales have changed hands for export to Tientsin, Hankow, Kiangse, Swatow, Ningpo, Canton and Yenkow.

Local mill sales being reported as follows:

Teh Dah and Hou Sun Mill sold 3,500 bales Pagoda 20's at Tls. 172.00 and Hong Yee 16's at Tls. 152.00 both February-March-April Delivery.

San Sin Mill sold 2,500 bales Picking-flower 20's at Tls. 169.00 and Red Round Dragon 16's at Tls. 147.00 both February-March Delivery.

Hong Yue Mill sold 1,500 bales Tripod 16's at Tls. 152.00 February-March Delivery.

SPUNT AND COMPANY

Messrs. J. Spunt and Company write as follows in their cotton market report.

China Cotton:—The principle feature of our market during the past week was the absence of any active demand on the part of spinners for the local staple, which, to a certain extent exerted a depressing effect on prices and brought about an easier undertone at the close. The decline registered ranges on the various grades between Tls. 0.50 to Tls. 1.00 per picul and which is also due to distress cotton being offered by a certain section of holders who have begun a timely preparation towards balancing up their settlements before the advent of the Chinese New Year, and as the time draws nearer to that important period we foresee a further decline being experienced and of which it would be advisable to take advantage as the probabilities are more for higher prices prevailing after the New Year festivities than otherwise. Tone of the market, Easy.

PONGEE MARKET

In their pongee silk market of Chefoo, The China Merchants Pongee Association state as follows:

Writing on the 5th instant our Chefoo Office reports on the Silk Market as follows:

The Market has opened firm with higher prices for many qualities. Stocks are very small and it is expected that prices will even rule higher in the near future.

HAIRNET MARKET

In the hairnet market of Chefoo, Messrs. Yannoulatos Bros. write as follows:

Our Chefoo Office reports that the Hairnet Market has opened strong and that prices are now higher than at the closing of the Year. A part of their report of January 5 reads as follows:

The Market has opened Strong.

Single Nets. There are scarcely any stocks of 10-38, 12-38 and 38-40, single nets, in the market and as a consequence prices have advanced.

Double nets. Stocks are small and holders are demanding higher prices.

Demand Steady.

Share Market

The share market has witnessed little change during the week, business being confined to debenture stocks and small lots of industrials.

Money is still very tight and will continue to be so until after the Chinese New Year. The Chinese banks demand 20 percent and more for accommodation.

People at present are investing their money in debentures, and consequently there is a good demand for such stocks. Difficulty is experienced in securing good debentures, and during the week the issue of Tls. 5,000,000 8 percent. Waterworks debentures at Tls. 100 was snapped up at Tls. 101. The issue was oversubscribed, which is a fair indication that the appetite for such gilt-edged securities is unsatiated.

The Waterworks Company wants money to extend its business to cope with the increasing demand for water owing to the growth of the Settlement.

Cotton shares are not in demand, and Ewos which three weeks ago were the medium for some business, declined during the week half a tael, while industrial stocks are steady, with a small demand for some stocks.

Hongkong Bank shares went up during the week some $25 owing to the dividend declared this year.

Versailles, 1919—Washington, 1921

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER

(Conference correspondent of The China Press, writing in The Nation.)

If I were the Chinese delegation today I should continue smiling, making optimistic statements to the press, and working unremittingly for every diplomatic advantage—and also pack my trunks. I should be prepared at any time in the next week to leave, my cards on my fellow-delegates and board the first train for San Francisco and there the first ship for Shanghai.

So long as one can cling to the hope that is built on the personality of Charles Evans Hughes, one moderates a little one's pessimism; but, looking at the Conference as it stands today, one can only say that it is on the road whose ending is Versailles. For China it came to a close yesterday. To China yesterday's performance by Messrs. Viviani, Balfour and Hanihara was notification that the Bourbons of the Occident have learned nothing and forgotten nothing. As for these many decades past, so now the Powers those men represent garlanded China with wreaths of sounding generalities and kept their clutch at its throat. So for China, then, there may be left no other course than to respond that she may be due for throttling but it will keep its self-respect and not stay to make mock gala of the grim process.

More important than China's future—if the Conference was ever seriously intended as an effort to bring about a reordering of the Far East and end the condition that makes of China a breeding-ground for wars, then the Conference has failed. The performance of yesterday was notification to the world that the Powers do not intend to end that condition.

To sum up the Conference as far as it has gone—I am not now considering its efforts for naval limitation: it has made conditional promise to give China a lower tariff, possibly even to let it fix its own tariff in the future. It has promised to remove—in time—the foreign post offices on Chinese soil. It has promised to investigate the possibilities of eventually relinquishing the right of extraterritoriality, which was promised also twenty years ago. Strike all of these, costing the Powers little and benefiting China scarcely more.

Yesterday the Conference came to issues that are vital. And one by one the spokesmen of the Powers arose and announced that they did not intend to touch those issues. True, France offered to give up Kwangchouwan, a small port of little value since it has the enormous tract of Indo-China nearby. And Great Britain offered to give up Weihaiwei, a naval station which has cost more to maintain than it is worth and which the British had intended to give up anyway; and simultaneously it has declared its intention of holding in perpetuity the territory known as Kowloon, which commands the whole Southern hinterland. And Japan offered to bargain with China about what it would give up in Shantung—while simultaneously insisting in the secret negotiations with China that it give up nothing—and announced that in South Manchuria it would recede not an inch; in other words, that it will hold to the letter of the iniquitous Twenty-one Demands.

In short, the Powers have come to Washington drawn by the menace to peace created by their past iniquities in the Far East. To lay that menace, therefore, they will make ambigous and abstract promises; not perpetrate new iniquities but cling to the fruits of the iniquities that have created the menace and will constitute a menace as as long as they remain undone. By so much they desire peace, and by so much is the world advanced toward peace. And now it is proposed to sanctify the whole cynical procedure by an exchange of treaties which may or may not be interpreted as a new and more sinister alliance. Do I exaggerate then if I say it is a second Versailles? What else than a fiasco and a hoax to befool a world longing for surcease of slaughter?

If this is the last word—and there is no reason to expect eleventh-hour conversion after the months which the Powers have had to prepare themselves for repentance here—if this is the last word, for what else need the Chinese delegates wait?

Remember—to stay and give ratification to these sordid transactions means that in exchange for the sops flung at China they give legal and formal recognition to all those injustices that exist by virtue of force majeure. Of these Manchuria is an outstanding example. Japan has Manchuria now and intends to keep it. And nothing the Chinese can do can wrest it from Japan. But they will be no worse off if they refuse to recognise Japan's right to it. They will not at least have foreclosed on the future. The issue then that the Conference now presents to the Chinese is this: Shall they, in exchange for the future withdrawal of foreign post offices, the remotely distant relinquishment of extraterritoriality, the conditional grant of a higher tariff, and the conditional retrocession of two little bits of soil, shall they sign away legal claim to that which means national sovereignty? I do not see why they should. I do not see why they should not decide to remain as long as the door is open to hope, but pack their trunks. If this is all that the Conference means to them, they can lose nothing by leaving. To the contrary, they will strengthen their case morally before the world, exactly as they did by refusing to sign the Treaty of Versailles.

In method as well as results there is the parallel here with Versailles. For the tactics which step by step have maneuvered the Chinese into their present unfavorable position, a defensive position from which they have to repel assaults rather than make the moral offensive which should have been theirs from the beginning, the American delegation is responsible. The Chinese laid down their ten general principles—ten demands, in effect. They desired to follow them up with concrete applications of those ten principles, to get their whole case before the world, the whole indictment of the record of the Powers, the whole bill of indemnification by the world, by payment of which alone can there be a foundation of peace. They were restrained by American advice. They were cautioned to go slowly, to follow the safe and sane course of the agenda, to begin with minor questions and lead up to the big ones; not to make the dramatic flourish and take advantage of the inspiriting world atmosphere that resulted from Mr. Hughes's great beginning.

They were restrained from Mr. Hughes's own successful tactics. They desired to precipitate the Shantung issue directly and openly, to make it a world issue with a world appeal. Again they were restrained by American advice, cautioned to follow the safe and sane course, to slide Shantung into the Conference by the darkened back door of separate negotiations. They were adjured to "trust to America"—as at Paris. They did so—as at Paris. And now it seems—as at Paris. And I can picture to myself Woodrow Wilson sitting secluded in his Sixteenth Street home smiling grimly and with satisfaction. With Versailles his enemies confounded him; unto them it is returning for their confounding.

One consolation there is. Naval reduction there probably will be at any rate. The causes that lead to war remain untouched, but if it comes to that, we shall at least have circumscribed the possibilities of slaughter.

An Interesting Debate Now Going on in the French Schools

BY PAUL VAN DYKE

(Director of the American University Union, Paris.)

The educational authorities of France are at present engaged in a very interesting discussion in regard to a proposed reform of secondary education. M. Leon Berard, Minister of Public Instruction, has proposed to the Committee on Instruction of the Chambre de Deputes quite marked changes in the programs of the secondary schools of France. It is too early to enter into detail in regard to these proposed changes. Suffice it to say for the present that they contemplate what may be fairly called a practical reversal of the fundamental principle of the reform of 1902, and a return to some of the earlier fundamental principles of French secondary education, which were partly abandoned at that epoch. The reform of 1902 was intended to be a reform in the direction of a more practical education. Abandoning, to a considerable extent, the previous idea that all scholars ought to receive up to a certain age the same education, an education which should be the best fitted to train the general powers and quality of their mind, the reform of 1902 proposed an early differentiation and specialisation of studies which should begin in the early years to fit students for the special carpers they proposed to follow.

Advocates of the new reform; like M. Berard, Minister of Public Instruction, and M. Appell, support, partly by the experience of the last twenty years, their opinion that the reform of 1902 followed the wrong road. M. Berard believes that the true mission of secondary education consists in forming "without immediate attention to their special careers in the future, young peole of trained mind, capable of adopting themselves to the varied necessities of the social organism, no matter what direction the final specialisation of their education may take." So far as can be judged without a study of the details of his plan—not yet made public—he wishes to remove from the problem of forming the best program for secondary education all preoccupation with the immediate utility as money getters of the subjects of study under consideration. He proposes that all students should follow the same program of studies up to the age of 16, and should then be allowed to choose between the continuation of the Greco-Latin humanities and the sciences.

The position of M. Appell, Recteur of the University of Paris, appears in an interview in the Temps. He thinks that all students in the Lycees should be required to study Latin and science, history and geography but that they should be given their choice between Greek and a modern language. Later the course should divide into two sections, one studying Latin, Greek, sciences and a modern language, the other Latin, sciences, two modern languages. He considers a reform necessary because "our secondary instruction cannot be a school of disorder, of the nearly known, of the habit of doing the least possible." He would provide other schools separate from the Lycees, not requiring Latin, "where a student could obtain a certificate which opened to him the higher instruction of the university faculties of science, for we have need of chemists, electricians, etc." But "no one should be allowed to teach in public institutions of learning, whether secondary or superior, who has not pursued classic studies."

This attitude demanding a return to obligatory Latin has earned for M. Appell, from those who oppose the present reform and desire to maintain the programs of 1902, the charge—not of being reactionary—that is reserved for those who, like the Minister of Education, are in favor both of Latin and Greek—but of compromising with reaction. The reform of the reform, whether in the guise of restoring one or both ancient languages, is labeled by some of its opponents as undemocratic, and a hostile manifesto even hints that if the reform is established by the educational authorities the "apostles of revolution will take by force this new Bastille," by which they apparently mean that they will try to carry the question of what and how the schools shall teach into the elections.

In connection with the discussion of this reform an interesting incident has recently arisen. The Association of Professors of Modern Languages asked the Chamber of Commerce of Lyons to join them in demanding the maintenance of the reform of 1902 by expressing the wish that in the coming reform the teaching of modern languages in the earlier school years should not suffer any diminution by a return to the teaching of the classics. The Chamber of Commerce of Lyons has just replied to this request of the Professors of

ANCIENT AND MODERN

"You are old, Father William," the young man cried,
"And exertion produces a pant
But how in the world did you manage to live
With never a two-step extant?"

* * *

"In the days of my youth," Father William replied,
"Our dances were worthy of name.
We didn't go walking all over the floor,
And our partners were seldom the same!"

* * *

"You are wise, Father William," the young man said,
"And your brain-pan's developed a lot;
But where was the interest in football and golf
When you were not pursuing a pot?"

* * *

"In the days of my youth," Father William replied;
"We played all our games just for fun,
And umpires and referees seldom required
To go on the field with a gun!"

* * *

"You are brisk, Father William," the young man cried.
"Rheumatics you're free from, and gout.
But how did you get o'er the week-end, Great Scott!
With never a motor about?"

* * *

"In the days of my youth," Father William replied,
"One's legs were of use to a chap.
But now I'll be blest if a fellow's content
Unless he can rush round the map!"

"You're a knut, Father William, in spite of your age,
And a judge of good style, I've no doubt;
But what do you make of the girl of today,
And the rig-up in which she turns out?"

* * *

"In the days of my youth," Father William replied,
"An ankle displayed was a treat;
But now the girls' frocks are so dreadfully brief,
They succeed in displaying three feet!"

* * *

"You are old, Father William," the young man said,
"And yet all your wits are alive;
But how did you manage to work in those days
A minute, a second past five?"

* * *

"In the days of my youth," Father William replied,
"We talked less and worked a lot more;
And we were not replaying last Saturday's match
With an eye on the clock and the door!"

* * *

"You're a fossil, back number!" the young man cried.
"And you talk is both bunkum and rot;
And I wonder I've spent such a lot of my time
With a dotard who's clean off his dot!"

"In the days of my youth," Father William replied,
"The young showed respect for grey hairs;
But now, you young puppy, scoot make yourself scarce,
Or else I shall kick you downstairs!"

Present Cabinet Will Not Last Long, Peking View

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Jan. 10.—Downfall of the Liang Shih-yi cabinet before the Chinese New Year is the prediction of most well-informed Chinese in Peking. Foreigners acquainted with the Chinese political game fear what the Chinese are openly predicting, and they fear it not so much for the sake of the new premier and his colleagues as because of the chaos that they think is likely to follow the demise of the present cabinet.

Reasons given for the probable early end of Mr. Liang's latest venture into politics are many and, in some cases, conflicting. The fundamental reasons are, however, considered sufficient to shorten the life of any cabinet trying to govern in China under present conditions.

First and most significant of all is the fact that Premier Liang and his colleagues were pitchforked into their jobs under the protection of Chang Tso-lin, who made them what they are today and to whom they are responsible. No Chang Tso-lin cabinet can last for any length of time, and the present cabinet is especially handicapped in that it was formed by Chang Tso-lin without the approval of the Chihli party.

Marshal Tsao Kun was, it is true, in Peking when the cabinet was formed, and it is equally true that he asked Liang Shih-yi to accept the premiership. But he did this for the reason that discretion was, in this case, the better part of valor and neither he nor General Wu Pei-fu had a thing to do with the appointment of a single minister in Liang's cabinet. Kao Ling-wei, minister of the interior, is widely known as a Chihli man. It is not so widely known that Kao Ling-wei some time ago deserted Chihli for Mukden and that he is now a staunch follower of the Manchurian warlord.

CAUSES OF CRITICISM

Failure of the Chihli faction led by Tsao Kun and Wu Pei-fu to cooperate in the formation of the Liang cabinet left that party free to form its own policies and practice its own politics. All they needed was an opening for criticism, which was ready-made, out-and-dried and simply waiting for its opportunity. This opportunity has come several times over.

First there is the reported reversal of policy in favor of Japan on the Shantung question. The Government denies that it has altered previous instructions to its delegates, but this denial is confronted with statements from members of the Chinese delegation at Washington to the effect that they intend to go ahead with their original Shantung policy, the Government's recent orders to the countrary notwithstanding. David Z. T. Yui, of Shanghai, who sent the original message from Washington, has a high reputation for both veracity and patriotism, and Shanghai reports indicate that the people there believe him rather than the Government.

Then there is the recent pardon of the Anfu criminals, which Chinese regard as a direct attack upon public sentiment and decency, and which foreigners characterise as both wrong and stupid. Liang Shih-yi would not, it is admitted, have granted these pardons if he had his own way about it, but that he did it under pressure from Chang Tso-lin indicates exactly where the Liang government stands as a Government.

Chinese tea-house rumors state that Mr. Liang and the Japanese Minister have had a number of talks together and that the sum and substance of their conversations is that henceforth China and Japan will try to get together and be more friendly.

These sentiments are in themselves admirable. It is felt that they should be carried out. But it is regretted that they should take the effect of seemingly costing China points that she was about to gain in regard to the Shantung Railway. Furthermore, the Chinese people don't appear to be inspired with any Japanese rapprochement fathered by Chang Tso-lin and brought into the world by Liang Shih-yi.

WU PEI-FU BUSY

That at all events appears to be the view of Wu Pei-fu, who has hitherto proved himself both a good creator and a good reader of public opinion. Wu Pei-fu has wasted no time. His criticism was ready for the opportunity, and when the opportunity came the criticism was launched on a wave of popular opinion favorable to him and hostile to Liang and his patron, Chang Tso-lin.

Tsao Kun will go with Wu Pei-fu. He can't do otherwise. And no cabinet can stand as long as Wu and Tsao are against it. Furthermore, Wu Pei-fu is making assurance doubly sure by withdrawing the pick of his troops from Hupeh to Loyang, where they will be ready, and near at hand in the event of an emergency.

In the meantime reports from all quarters indicate that plans for reunification are making headway. This means, say the Chinese liberals, that Chang Tso-lin and his friends, the Anfuites, are pushing forward their negotiations with Dr. Sun Yat-sen. But there is not a sign from Chen Chiung-ming. Not a word to show that he is getting into touch with either Chang Tso-lin or Liang Shih-yi; on the contrary, there are indications that General Chen is closer than over before to General Wu Pei-fu. And General Chen is the real power in the South even more than General Wu is the real power in the North.

If Chang Tso-lin and his crowd are willing to let matters come to a show-down the Liang Cabinet may last until the fighting is over. But the weather is cold and the political moment not yet ripe for fighting. The Chinese who are in the know, as well as most foreigners, think that the Chinese favor the peaceful resignation of the Liang ministry and the retirement of all, or most, of its members from the political stage before the Chinese New Year.

What will come then no one cares, or knows enough to predict. But the chances are that there will be another coalition ministry in which the Chihli Party will, for a change, take a controlling part.

Make The Punishment Fit The Crime

By Ring W. Lardner

During my visit to Washington a wile ago the people that has charge of the automobile traffic in the dis. of Columbia was all steamed up over the way motorists was disobeying the laws and what was to be done to learn drivers a lesson and etc. and finely one of the commissioners or something give it as his opinion that the trouble was on acct. of the penalties not being severe enough, like for inst. most drivers would rather shoot along about 25 to 30 miles per hour and run the slight risk of getting arrested once in a wile rather than always crawl along like a snail's pace and never get nowheres in time for the cocktails. Make the punishment fit the crime was this guy's slogan and 2 of his suggestions was as follows:

A motorist caught speeding in the dist. should be made to draw up to the curb and stay there 15 minutes, the cop to act as time keeper.

When a motorist parked his car in a place where parking was not allowed, or parked too long in a place where they was a time limit on parking, a special patent looking device would be put on the car by the cop, and the only keys to the lock would be kept in the various police stations and when the motorist come for his car and found it locked, he would halt to go to the nearest police station and give proof that he was the owner of the car and also put up as much money as the police thought the car was worth so in case it turned out that he wasn't the owner, why when the real owner showed up and complained that his car had been stole, they could give him the money insteal of bothering to look for his car. This cash bond would be left in the station a wk. and if nobody showed up in that time to say the car was his, the dough would be returned to the guy that put it up.

That is what the dist. commissioner suggested and I don't know what the done with his suggestions, but if they really want to stop speeding and illegal parking you can bet your life that those two little amendments to the constitution would do the trick. But it seems to me like they was other things that motorists does which is at least as bad as driveing too fast or parking in the wrong place and these other things is also vs. the law, but the offender generally always gets let off with a fine that don't mean nothing to him whereas the right kind of punishment along the lines suggested by the Washington man would make him think twice before he misbehaved himself.

Like for inst. they's a law in most towns vs. driveing with a open muffler. The people that disobeys this law is always people that likes to show off and make more noise than anybody else, so as a penalty for violations of this law I would first cut their tongues out and then make them spend a wk. in a boiler factory.

Or supose a man is caught driveing past a standing still street car. They way to cure him from this habit would be to make him back up and get on the car track behind the street car and follow it around for 2 days. Or if he was caught driveing on the left side of the road or if his head lights was too bright I would wait till it was time for the theaters to let out and then make him drive up and down Broadway between 40th and 50th st. blind folded.

Once in a wile you read about a motorist disobeying 2 or 3 laws at once like for inst. they was a prominent New Yorker got his name in the papers a wile ago for speeding driveing on the left side of the street and driveing wile intoxicated al at the same time. I never seen it printed what they done to him, but I suppose he got fined $50.00 or a $100.00, which was just chicken food to him you might say. What they ought to done would be to first make him sober up and then lock him in a room for a wk. with nobody to talk to but a traffic policeman.

Penalties like the above would soon put a end to violations of the motor laws and in the same way crimes of all kinds could be did away with if the punishments fitted them like for inst. the way it is now days a man is arrested for boot legging and they send him to jail for 6months or a year and when he comes out he can live in the lapse of luxury on what he saved up before they got him. The right way to deal with this bird would be to lock him up with a bll. of his own hootch and not leave him out till he drunk it.

Or suppose they's a gal murders her husband or some other lady's husband. Under the present system they print her picture 5 and 6 times a day for a couple months and give her 9 columns every edition to talk about herself and the only real draw back is when the jury lets her go and she has to kiss 12 good men and true that ain't washed their face for a week and chews tobacco.

Well, friends, you won't never stop the wholesale murder of gents by the opp. sex with no such methods as that.

The way to stop it is for the newspapers and police to work together. Let the last named arrest the murderess if they wish, but whether they arrest her or don't arrest her, let the papers treat her the same as if she was a good woman and had did nothing all her life but good deeds, i.e. don't mention her name.

Modern Languages by a report in which they explain their reasons for refusing to join in their demand. They say, "Public opinion in France is now well established that the results of the programs of secondary instruction in vogue for twenty years are regrettable. The abandoning of Latin and Greek, the cutting up into fragments of the courses, the absence of a principal professeur who before 1902 aided in the formation of the character and the personality of young people, have brought about the result that pupils leave school knowing less French and without having learned more of the modern languages." . . . "In learning Latin and Greek we learn French."

"It is an absolute error to believe that the classic humanities should be reserved for a small number of young people who are to become lawyers or scholars or experts in ancient documents. Your appeal to the opinion of the merchants and manufacturers of the Chamber of Commerce does not fit in with their experience. We recognise from the first letter written by a new employe whether he has studied Latin or not. A simple letter of commerce implies a logical order, a sort of introduction followed by the main subject, and then something vaguely equivalent to a peroration: that is to say, a miniature of what a Latin speech is. This is even more the case when the matter in hand is a report or a more extended study or conditions."

"In our schools of commerce the leading scholars are precisely those who have studied Latin."

The Chamber of Commerce summed up its opinion in a paragraph in which it concludes: "That the study of Latin and Greek is the only way to really learn the French language; that it is also the best means of giving to the mind those ideas of clarity, logic and a good method of argumentation which are useful for preparing any sort of written matter; that the study of the classic humanities constitutes the best gymnastic for the mind and is therefore useful to all students who enter secondary education; that is to say, it is just as good for young people who expect to enter commerce and industry as it is for those who look forward to what are called the liberal professions, and that, finally, the study of classic humanities is equally useful as a preparation for the study of modern languages."

W.H.C. FLAT SUPER-DURABLE PAINT

FLAT WALL FINISH

A perfect Paint of smooth surface for Interior Wall Coating

The surface obtainable with this paint is smooth and flat, i.e., it is not a grainy, dead, lifeless finish, but of a velvety texture. It dries in a reasonably quick time, so that work can be carried out effectively, yet has the property of remaining open long enough to enable the worker to cover a large surface of wall without making laps or edges.

Excellent results with Super Durable Flat Finish are easily obtained, irrespective of the skill of the user, and an elaborate preparation of the surface is usually quite unnecessary.

Super Durable Flat Finish has been tried on non-absorbent surfaces of all kinds and where distemper and oil paint have proved prone to shell or flake off, it has always adhered. It gives a lasting finish of surprising beauty.

1 Imperial Gallon covers about 130 square yards one coat.

Eastern U. S. Hit By 90-Mile Gale

(China Press Service)

New York, Jan. 12.—The Atlantic Coast in the vicinity of New York has just experienced the worst gale of the winter. A ninety-mile gale off Sandy Hook brought hail, snow and rain successively. Pedestrians were hurled to the sidewalks. Many were injured by falling cornices. Many windows were smashed.

Traffic was disrupted and harbor traffic hard hit.

Wire communications were disrupted with New Jersey and Long Island.
